

Answer
1	The dumping of waste.
2	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - The spread of many diseases due to contaminated water. - The reduction of agricultural produce, leads to rising levels of poverty and hunger.
3	The continuous drought and the improper use of water resources.
4	It makes it difficult to stay on the land, forcing people to migrate to cities.
5	The traffic congestion, industrial gases, and the burning of rubbish.
6	It causes serious health problems, such as respiratory diseases and heart diseases, leading to rising healthcare costs each year.