

Answer

In the past, I had a friend who preferred living in the countryside because of its tranquillity and natural beauty. My friend enjoyed the fresh air and the picturesque views surrounding him, and he felt relaxed, far from the hustle and bustle (noise) of the city.

At present, my friend lives in the city due to the abundance of job opportunities and the diversity of social and cultural life it offers. He believes that city life provides him with many opportunities for development and learning, as well as access to essential services and facilities.

In the future, my friend hopes to return to the countryside. He wishes to live in a clean environment that promotes mental and physical well-being through outdoor activities, enjoying fresh local produce, and escaping the noise of the city.
